Clerk's Report for 2021

Jonathan Fletcher

It has been a year of huge change in AWPS. Not only have we had to face the uncertainties and restrictions imposed by the Covid-19 virus, we have a new Secretary.

Ronis Chapman finished her 8-year term as AWPS Section Secretary in 2021. Her contribution to the shape and work of both the Section and the FWCC during this time was very significant. An indication of the value and appreciation that the global Quaker community has for Ronis's work was the large international attendance at her virtual farewell held over zoom in October 2021.

Ronis and Adrian had a two-month handover period leading to Adrian starting on 1 September 2021. Adrian lives close to Fremantle, Western Australia. He has been involved with Friends since 1991. Apart from being involved with Friends, most of his working and volunteer life has been connected to communications, education, peace, social justice, environment, and sustainable development work.

The impacts of Covid-19 and the need to adapt to it have altered the way that AWPS (and FWCC) operates. We have learned to make much greater use of the internet and of virtual communication methods and are better at recognising what is required to be an effective international presence. Good communication and collaboration is more important than ever. There is no doubt that Covid-19 has altered for ever the way AWPS operates, and we now face the challenge of how to combine the best of the ways we used to work with the best of the new ways to deliver on AWPS's Mission to: bring Friends of varying traditions and cultural experiences together in worship, communications, and consultation, to express our common heritage and our Quaker message to the world.

As a face-to-face Gathering has not been possible, a virtual Gathering themed Being a Quaker Neighbour was held with three sessions over the weekend of the 24th and 25th of July 2021. While time differences and the limited quality of internet services in some areas in the Section posed challenges, the Gathering was well attended by Friends across the Section.

Highlights included: small group engagement with each other across the Section; an opportunity for attendees and Adrian to meet one another; a session led by Jonathan Woolley from QUNO; and the Sunday morning worship session which reflected the rich cultural diversity with the Section.

The major challenge of the Section is matching resources to priorities and Adrian and the Section Committee are putting a lot of thought into both ends of this challenge. We are looking both at how to do more and also at making sure that we focus on what is most valued by Friends throughout the Section. Adrian's report will give more details of this work.

Finally, I would like to thank everybody from across the Section who has contributed to the tasks of AWPS and especially my fellow Section Committee members and Adrian for all the time and thought they have put in.

Seven Areas for Development for Friends in Asia West Pacific

The sort of questions that could arise from Areas of Development 1-7:

- 1. Develop Section-wide relationships Let's set up conversations about how best this might be done (More meetings for worship online? webinars? Active Hope /Climate Action groups? South Asia Interest Groups? School networks? Travelling in the Ministry? Over time could we facilitate/help generate an Asia West Pacific set of Advices & Queries?
- 2. Build capacity in Meetings and in Friends How can we encourage life in the Spirit, grow in Quaker learning: webinars, internet access, committee skills. Travelling in the ministry?
- 3. Inclusive language approaches How can we ensure that Friends in Asia West Pacific who don't read in English can still access useful Quaker texts in translation? How can we ensure our webinars and gatherings are accessible to those whose first language is not English? Will AWP Global North Friends be interested in taking up cultural challenges eg Asian/Indigenous language learning clubs?
- 4. Develop communications How can we create a steady stream of reasonable-quality video communications, and podcasts, and embed them appropriately in our emails, on social media, and in a website that attracts regular traffic? How can we build "action learning" into our processes?
- 5. What faith-in-action Quaker concerns could unite Friends across Asia West Pacific?
 - a. Climate emergency? eg Third Pole issues covering 16 countries; Air and water quality in cities? Food security in rural and metropolitan areas? Threatened species? Bird migration?
 - b. Indigenous issues?
 - c. Peace, militarism and the arms trade?
 - d. Linking Quaker United Nations Office with multilateral concerns (eg World Trade Organisation environmental standards on plastic pollution) with local meetings
 - e. Young Friends Volunteer Programs/Internships organised around the concerns listed above, partnering with workshop opportunities offered by Friends Peace Teams Asia West Pacific training, Northeast Asia Regional Peacebuilding Institute training, Mindanao Peacebuilding Training, ecumenical or interfaith peace, justice or environment conferences...
- 6. Fundraise for Core activities and special projects How do we coordinate fundraising between different Quaker agencies, including our own? See separate paper
- 7. Spiritual nourishment How can we put Quaker insights into the heart of everything we do?

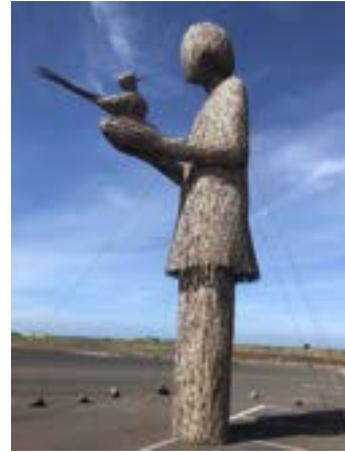

Areas for development 1:

Develop Section-wide relationships

The first theme is the value of continuing to develop Section-wide relationships, including

a. Quaker affiliated groups such as:

- i. the Friends Peace Team Asia West Pacific
- ii. Quaker schools
- iii. meetings
- iv. isolated Friends
- v. interest groups within Friends, such as Young Friends, Earthcare or South Asia Interest Group out of Britain Yearly Meeting, Climate Action Emerging Network, action against the arms trade
- vi. Developing a loving, realistic strategy that helps us connect with non-affiliated Friends churches and meetings in Asia West Pacific
- vii. Quaker educational institutions (adult education and schools) serving Friends globally or just within our Section
- viii. Finding ways to strengthen our work with national FWCC committees in Australia, Aotearoa New Zealand and elsewhere will also build our capacity and reach
- ix. Quaker aid, peace and development groups active in Asia West Pacific

b. other peace churches, and interfaith opportunities such as Religions for Peace Asia

c. other similarly aligned peace, development and environment groups working on building capacity and resilience in communities, such as think tanks, peace & conflict teaching groups (such as North-east Regional Peacebuilding Institute, Mindanao Peacebuilding Institute, and Centre for Peace and Conflict Studies [Cambodia))

These relationships are strengthened through practicing active awareness, care, concern, appreciation, curiosity, service and mutual support. This is part of the networking brief of FWCC.

Areas for development 2

Build Capacity in Meetings and in Friends across the Asia West Pacific Section

(a) This includes making available essential information about Quaker spiritual insights and processes, in local languages.

a. One part of this will be finding ways to increase translation of key Quaker texts - Korea is keen! – and facilitating faithful translations of Quaker terms into local Friends' languages

b. Potentially we could develop over the next several years an Asia-West Pacific wide Advices & Queries

(b) offering express and experiential learning about Quaker ways through partnering with Quaker education agencies (eg Woodbrooke, Pendle Hill, The Settlement, Silver Wattle) and webinars (such as the March one about aid, peace and development involving five Quaker agencies; or attending third party trainings (eg NARPI, MPI, or others). This learning should be express, to limit the misunderstandings that can occur in translation; and experiential in order to keep our living connection with the Spirit and Quaker ways

(c) building IT/technical capacity, for yearly meetings to access long distance video communications with viable internet speeds, and with training to support Friends getting to know the equipment and software.

(d) building our own Committee's capacity is also important. This may include slightly increasing the numbers of Friends on the committee, to reflect geographic and cultural diversity; following on from a decision at the Hong Kong section meeting a couple of years ago, it also means developing “portfolio” responsibilities for Committee members, which we are currently exploring. It has also led us to more consciously employ Meeting for Worship for Business methods in how we meet and record decisions.

(e) Work with interfaith groups with common concerns eg Religions for Peace Asia

(f) Encourage engagement with Section groups for seasoned Friends whom have served on the Section Committee over the years, and so have built up friendships, relationships, knowledge and insights that other Friends may wish to draw from.

(g) Consider how we can address particular parts of the Section, which will have their own separate concerns and challenges – Western Pacific comes to mind

Areas for development 3

Inclusive Language Approaches

In the last 25 years or so, English has seemed to have become the Asian lingua franca. That is to the principal advantage of Friends in countries like Australia, Aotearoa/New Zealand, Singapore and Hong Kong.

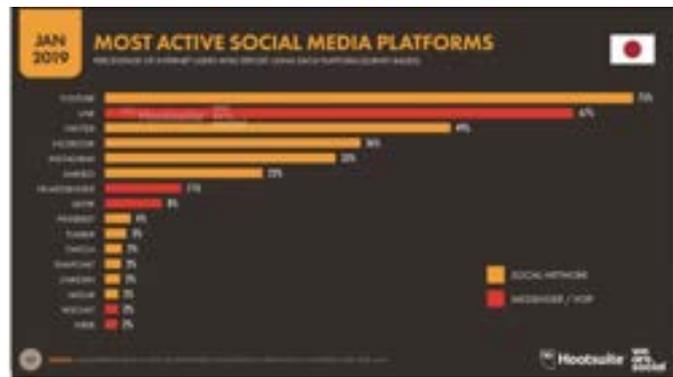

However for Friends for whom English is their second, third or fourth language, a basic competence in English may still lead some to hesitate or not participate in Section life as richly as they might. We need to find out. For those who only know English, these hesitations may go undetected. It may be because of less visible, perceived, or actual impediments to confident communications. Attending to inclusive language approaches is therefore a matter of equality, as well as community, and integrity:

- (a) I believe we have some valuable things to learn from the way Friends Peace Teams and Northeast Asia Regional Peacebuilding Institute are pioneering more inclusive language approaches.
- (b) I have also been exploring the capacities of software like Whova to enable hybrid meetings/conferences to include language translation via smartphones, and zoom itself offers some live translation.
- (c) Translating useful Quaker texts is another worthy priority, along with encouraging the facilitation of a process to translate Quaker terms/glossaries into local language. Perhaps funding can be found for this facilitation.
- (d) The Section Committee has recognised the value of the Secretary becoming familiar with at least one Asian language to A1 level (in my case, Japanese), and another Asian language in terms of a 40-50 basic phrases (this is likely to be Hindi for me for a visit to India in 2023). Asia West Pacific Section has generously funded 32 lessons with the Kanazawa based Ishikawa Foundation for International Exchange– these are now completed. I will continue consolidating my basic A1 competencies, to hopefully allow myself exchanges. Neither my Japanese or my intent to learn some introductory Hindi will give me fluency, but it shares in the language effort. I thank the Committee for its support.
- (e) Friends Language clubs, where Friends get together to learn an Indigenous or Asia West Pacific language over six months

Areas for development 4

Develop Communications

Priorities include:

- (a) the Secretary’s “Weekly Round”
- (b) the two-monthly Secretary’s Newsletter, “The Asia West Pacific Circle” and
- (c) finding ways to revamp the website and
- (d) given the feedback from our survey with readers – communicate through a youtube channel also.
 - If we are to reach Friends across the Section, and especially Young Friends (and those whom might actually be Quakers without knowing it!), videos are the medium of choice for communication. They are visual, but they also allow subtitles, which helps overcome problems of accents even if those subtitles are only in English. Marvellous, except videos require exponential effort, and covid has made matters worse, and yet in some ways, more reachable, as people have grown used to upskilling in these technologies. For all the time it takes to set-up interviews, meet basic technical requirements (especially audio and lighting), editing (many hours and hours), I believe this could be as important to creating a common celebration of our being Friends in the Section as any section meeting, and will reach far more people.

(e) Webinars In keeping with the brief to network among Quaker agencies, a webinar was held on 26 March 2022 including speakers from American Friends Service Committee, Friends Peace Team Asia West Pacific, Quaker Peace and Service Aotearoa New Zealand, Quaker Service Australia, and Quaker United Nations Office (QUNO),

(f) Podcasts the new QUNO director has invited me make a few podcasts about current QUNO work. The first one will be recorded on 5 May. Editing will be subject to time constraints.

(g) We have a Section Committee gathering planned for this year – most likely it will be based in zoom

(h) There is also a need to better explain and distinguish the separate FWCC entities that are active including:

- a. National committees in Aotearoa New Zealand and Australian meetings
- b. FWCC Asia West Pacific Section, currently registered as an incorporated association in South Australia
- c. FWCC World Office
- d. Central Executive Committee, the trust overseeing the FWCC World Office

In terms of communicating beyond Friends, there are occasions when I find it easier to call FWCC AWPS, “Quakers in Asia West Pacific” for purposes of clarity.

Areas for development 5

Find Suitable Common Concerns that allow us to unite in faith-in-action

This accepts that Section is a mosaic of different cultures (including expat cultures) with different national settings in terms of human rights, freedom of expression, experience in social change, and capacity for action. Examples could arise through finding specific ways to

(a) support diplomatic work by QUNO and relevant campaigns being developed by other Friends' agencies. This could be on environmental issues (such as climate justice) or peace (disarmament or reducing tensions) – or researching the underrepresented dimension of corporate influence over nation states (state capture) and the power of corporations to assist in multilateral goals (such as SDGs). We could be working with QUNO and other agencies to provide them Section-specific examples that dovetail with their own programs focus. This might be longer term, and enable us to think about fundraising research or project positions from Asian foundations.

(b) Identify potential Section-wide concerns (for example, Third Pole, air quality, climate education for young people, loneliness, food security, an aspect of disaster preparedness linked to the Quaker testimonies, the arms trade, nuclearisation), appropriate to circumstances, but woven together to be part of a larger Asia West Pacific story. Early days, but there are possibilities through initiatives from an individual in India and Aotearoa New Zealand for us to generate interest groups that meet. There is also the potential of linking more strongly with Britain Yearly Meeting's South Asia Interest Group.

(c) Identify a smooth and predictable process for managing emergencies within our Section fellowship

Areas for development 6

Fundraise for Core Asia West Pacific Activities and New Projects

Success in these five themes will help strengthen and merge into a sixth theme, which is fundraising. This fundraising should be integrated to help support the fledgling Asia West Pacific Section (the least resourced of all Sections), FWCC World Office, QUNO, and other campaigns that might emerge through our efforts, as well as events and/or disasters that arise. We will need to find ways to help support Friends' generosity in times of hardship, through a streamlined emergency response process, working with existing agencies wherever possible, as well as encourage Friends to maintain that generosity for longer term efforts. A separate paper on fundraising is being developed is at the heart of all we do, because it connects us to our common source, replenishes us and the world at large. This theme involves the Section finding ways to connect via Meetings for Worship online, and in a next-phase covid world, in person; to explore ways to deepen our faith and practice.

Areas for development 7

It involves finding our gratitude for those Friends who give service to the Spirit now, but also those who have come before – including those missionaries who have gone to Asian countries and succeeded in finding people who were Friends but hadn't known it already, starting meetings and schools that are their legacy today.

Essentially, the theme of spiritual nourishment informs, connects with and is fed by all the other themes too!

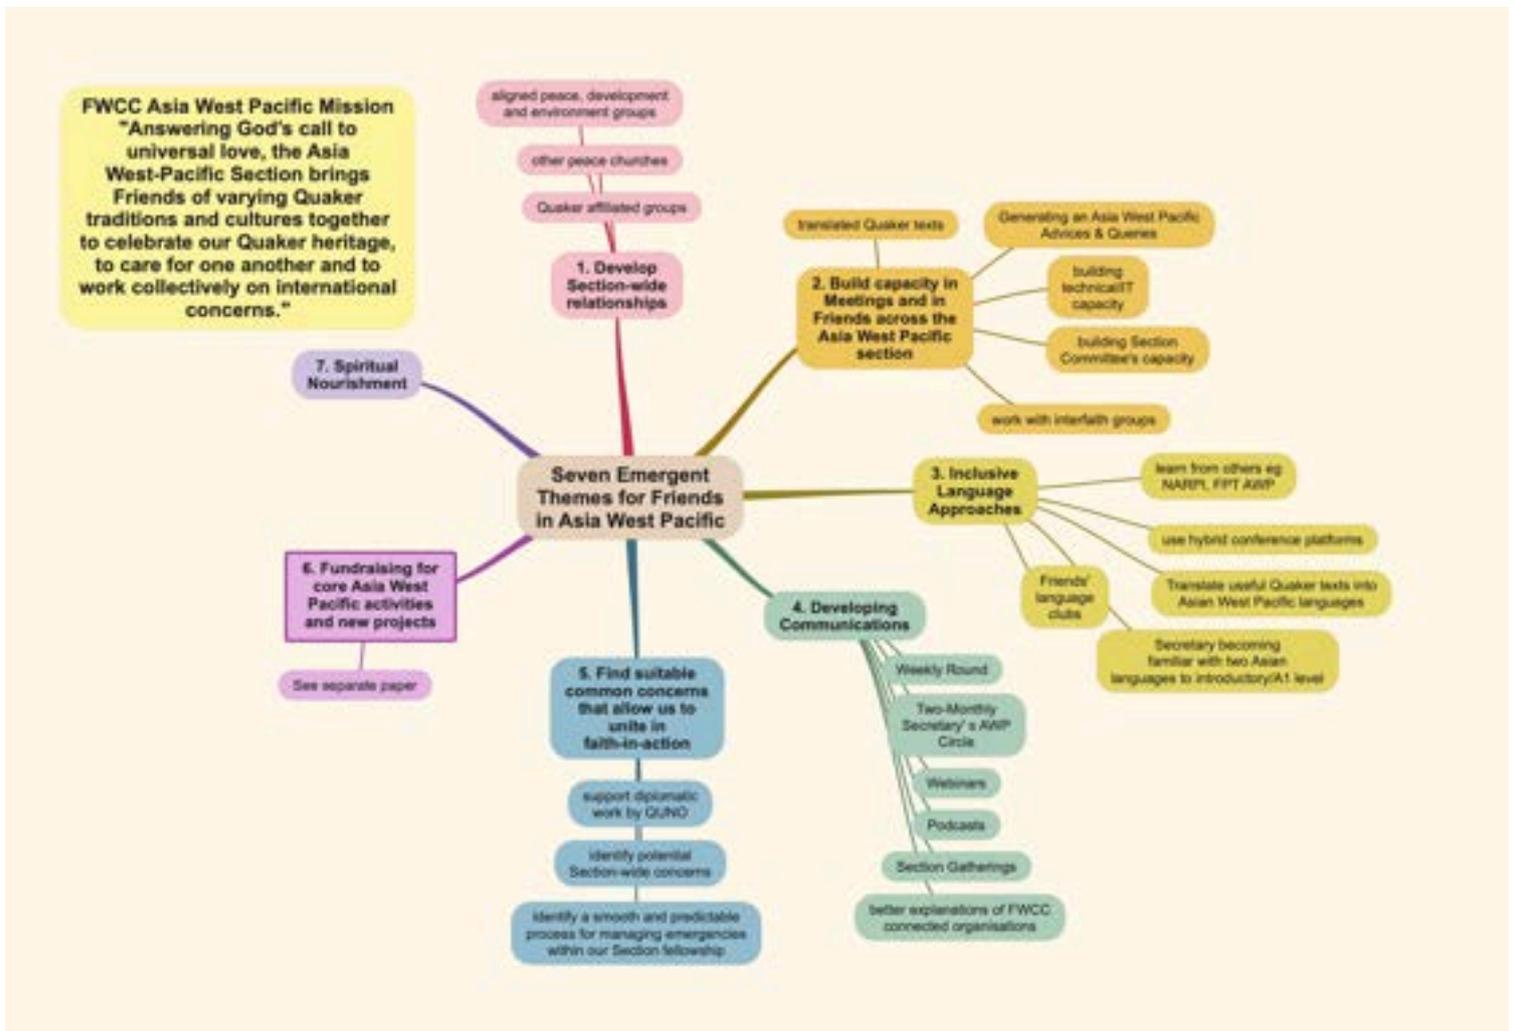

Overarching FWCC Mission

These seven areas for developments, as I have sensed or perceived them, seem well aligned with our FWCC Mission, which is expressed on our website thus:

Answering God's call to universal love, the Asia West-Pacific Section brings Friends of varying Quaker traditions and cultures together to celebrate our Quaker heritage, to care for one another and to work collectively on international concerns.

Maomawan Island

Me & fellow Quaker Ludwig, on our way to the island for the relief and recovery work

Houses in the island were knocked down and fishing boats were destroyed.

Funds we received from Friends were extended to the people of the island through a sustainable livelihood project called the Boat Project.

Bohol Friends, together with Kins of FPT, facilitated peace practice and post-typhoon debriefing of mothers using AVP exercises.

It is evident that our community of loving and steadfast people maintain our Oneness, in good times and in bad. As we walk cheerfully in this world, we always hold on to our acknowledgement that there is that of God in everyone.

On behalf of the Bohol Worship Group (Boni, Ludwig and Dice), I express my gratitude to you all. Each one of you brings with you the Light, as we also share with you our Light.
